In spite of the 2015 earthquake which damaged Nepal structures and affected the local tourism industry, Nepal is slowly rising to its feet. The emphasis is now on preserving their heritage, building safer and stronger buildings and facilities, as well as preserving it's being known as a romantic destination. Here are five boutique hotels which are helping to build a more responsible era in the country's tourism.

The Barahi Jungle Lodge, Chitwan is an eco-lodge. In 2015 it was rated by the Travel Operators for Tigers as "outstanding" in sustainability. It has 18 huts in the resort's 13 hectares of virgin forest. Each has a romantic view of the Rapti River and national park, as well as its own private balcony and access to the big swimming pool.
